

Application for Accreditation of an Additional Program Title

The Australian Psychology Accreditation Council Limited (APAC) is the accreditation authority for Psychology programs in Australia. All programs accredited by APAC are assessed against the Accreditation Standards for Psychology Programs \(2019\).

This form is for education providers to submit when

- adding a program title to an existing APAC sequence or program of study where the coursework and unit codes of the additional program title are identical in every aspect to those in the current APAC accredited sequence or program of study.
- combining an APAC accredited program title with another program to make a double degree, e.g. Bachelor of Arts (Psychology)/Bachelor of Commerce.

If the content of the new program of study differs in any respect, e.g. variation to course structure, units, learning outcomes, content, or the program is now being offered online for the first time, APAC will undertake a more comprehensive review requiring further evidence to be submitted.

By submitting this form, the education provider confirms that it wishes APAC to review the additional program title for the purpose of accreditation and agrees to the payment of the associated fee as advised on APAC's website. APAC will invoice on receipt of this application and complete processing this application once payment is received.
